COUNT BONI DE CASTELLANE, the husband of Miss Gould, manages to keep up his conspicuousness. Last week he entertained the King of Portugal; this week he was expelled from the French House of Representatives on the ground that he had bought his election.

SECRETARY of State Hay, was recently discovered by some reporters, seated on a tall stool and munching an eatinghouse sandwich in the Pennsylvania station at Jersey City. Next him sat a very ragged individual who was stirring his coffee and smacking his lips in anticipation. Finally he tapped the Secretary on the shoulder with a very dirty paw and said, "Say sport, ferry the candy over, will yer?" Mr. Hay politely passed the sugar and the reporters fell to speculating on what Lord Salisbury would have said or done under similar circumstances.

Sex segregation is now in the air. Not only is co-education becoming unpopular in the great colleges and universities but even in the Government offices in Washington very few women are now appointed or desired.

Lassoed the Villain.

One night last week there was a fascinating conglomeration of the drama of true, wholesome Texas life at the Grand Opera house in San Antonio Tex. Zach Mulhall, general live stock agent of the Frisco, was there with his cowboy band, and they occupied eight boxes at the Grand that night at the presentation of Hal Reid's "Human Hearts."

"Can my boys make all the noise they want to?" asked Colonel Mulhall before he accepted the invitation. He was assured that they could. The band was attired in leather leggings, buckskin shirts, campaign hats and red bandana handkerchiefs. They carried Colt's six-shooters and belts full of cartridges. Miss Lucile Mulhall, the pretty daughter of Colonel Mulhall, who can rope and tie a steer in 38 seconds flat and sing an operatic air equal to a prima donna, accompanied the band as sponsor.

After the third curtain the band struck up "Dixie," with such feeling that everybody cheered until they were hoarse, but the climax of enthusiasm and consternation came when Miss Mulhall snatched a six shooter out of one of the men's pockets and emptied it in the direction of the ceiling. This "boys" were not averse to following her example, and while they continued to play music they punctuated the stirring notes with a fusillade of shots. There was wild consternation in the big audience, but a panic was averted.

There was another tremendous sensation when Jim Hopkins, a big rawboned cowboy, not liking the way the heroine was being treated, undertook to lasso the villain. While unsuccessful the attempt caught the fancy of the crowd and Hopkins was forced to take the stage, laet in hand, and bow his acknowledgments.

On the whole it was a bit of the "wild and woolly west," not witnessed here in many years.

CLIFTON NEWS.

Colonel Wm. True had an adventure with a burglar at an early hour one day this week. He happened to notice that the front door of Mac Smith's Candy Kitchen was slightly open, and knowing it was too early for Mr. Smith to make his appearance, he shoved the door open and walked in. As he did so a man made his exit from the side door of the building and ran down the alley, with the Colonel in hot pursuit. The burglar got away, but Mr. True saved the house from being burglarized.

Constable Hamilton had an adventure with a crazy prospector one night last week. The prospector, who is a well known character, has been around town trying to negotiate a number of checks which he said had been signed by C. E. Mills, superintendent of the Detroit Copper company. The checks ranged from $200 up to large amounts. Any business man familiar with the D. C. checks could tell at a glance that the signature was not that of Mr. Mills. The prospector claimed to have $2000,000 on deposit in El Paso, and was making a wild talk about his wealth. Mr. Hamilton concluded to lock him up until morning. The prospector accompanied him very quietly until they neared the jail, when he broke away and made a run for his life with the constable in hot pursuit. Billy was the fleetest, and several times was about to lay his hands on the prospector, who always continued in his mad flight. The officer finally tripped and measured his full length in the mud, and then gave up the chase in disgust. The prospector has not since been seen, and it is feared he may have wandered off into the hills, and possibly perished from cold.

Miss Lena Wish returned home from a visit to Duncan last Sunday night.

ATTEMPTED ASSASSINATION.

Two Shots Fired at The King of Belgium by an Italian Anarchist.

A Brussels, dispatch says:—A bold and deliberate attempt was made to kill the King of Belgium early Saturday morning.

His majesty was on his way to the cathedral to attend mass in memory of his late queen, Marie Henrietta, when he was fired upon twice, but both shots luckily missed him.

Officers and bystanders instantly rushed forward and grappled with the man who was taking deliberate aim preparatory to firing again.

The officers with difficulty prevented the crowd which was immediately assembled, from taking summary vengeance on the would be assassin, and he was hustled to jail with rapidity.

He gave the name of Rubieno, and admitted that he was an anarchist. He confessed that he intended to kill King Leopold, but asserted that he had no personal grievance against the monarch.

When the public prosecutor arrived at the jail and questioned the Italian closely, he intimated that he was detailed by a society of anarchists to remove the king.

Intense excitement prevailed when the attempt to murder the king became generally known in city. The event seems to have the effect of renewing the king's popularity with the people of his capital city. There is no doubt that for a long time the king has been unpopular with his people, more unpopular than ever since the death of the queen.

It is known that the royal pair did not live happily together, and reports have been circulated of ill treatment of the late queen by his majesty. It is admitted that the king and queen had not spoken for twenty five years until a few hours before her death.

The king proceeded to cathedral after the would be assassin had been secured. He remained engaged throughout the whole affair.

The police believe that Rubieno has confederates in the city, and a general round up is being made of all suspicious characters.

Messages of congratulation from nearly every monarch in Europe have been pouring in on the king since the failure of the attempt to assassinate him was made public.

A fuller investigation showed that Rubieno fired ball cartridges. One bullet smashed the window of the comete D'Outremonts carriage and grazed the grand marshal's face.

Put a Stop to Brand Fraud.

Members of the territorial live stock sanitary board propose to put a stop to the unlawful use of cattle brands throughout Arizona and hereafter it will be necessary for applicants for brands to prove that they have something else besides a horse, a saddle and a rope to get possession of a brand. It has come to light that irresponsible parties have been defrauding their neighbors by securing a brand and then proceed to the range and take possession of all unbranded cattle and mavericks in sight. By this means they would soon become possessed of a quantity of cattle. At its last meeting the board took up this matter and after discussing it thoroughly decided that in order to check the brands by these irresponsible parties they must, by affidavit and otherwise, show that they are in actual possession of cattle and that they are the bona fide owners of the same to secure brand advertising. It was also decided that hereafter all brands asked for would be advertised for two consecutive weeks in some newspaper in order to give the cattlemen and others a chance to protest in case there is any chance of fraud about to be perpetrated.—Copper Era.

Another Big Mining Deal.

On Nov. 11th a mining deal was consummated here, that will result in the opening of another property in this county. On that date The Mountain Lion group of claims, owned by H. G. Colvin, Truman Tryon and Monroe Ourtis was sold to Capt. Thos. McEniry of this place. Consideration $10,000 cash and some mining stock. The property, we understand, is a good one, and a great deal of development work has been done on it. Some samples of gold ore brought in showing up very rich. The Mountain Lion group is situated in the Table Mountain Mining District.—Paragon.

Arturo Elias, Graham's democratic wheel horse, is asking the appointment as clerk to the Board of Supervisors. Arturo has the hearty good will of every democrat at this end of Graham county and will not lack for friends to second his petition. The Standard voices universal sentiment of the east end in asking that Mr. Elias be given this position.—Morenci Standard.

A petition to the Board of Supervisors has been circulated and endorsed this week by the friends of John J. Birdno, asking his appointment as assessor of Graham county. The Board can make a better selection, nor one that will better please the taxpayers of the county. Mr. Birdno is a public spirited citizen at the front of every move for the county's advancement, and is just the kind of a man to make a careful, thorough and painstaking assessor. This is an important trust and the citizens will rest secure if their sines of war are under the care of Mr. Birdno.—Morenci Standard.

SWINE BREEDING.

We have for two or three years settled on this line of advice: Keep your hogs as far as possible separated from the hogs of your neighbors. During the cholera season keep the stranger out of your hog pastures and feed lots. He has no business there, and the two classes of men who have the least business are the peddler of dead hogs and your relatives and your wife's or your neighbors who have hog cholera in their herds and come over to see whether yours have it or not. Another class of fellows to be kept out are the men who sell hog cholera sure cures. Let the dog loose when these men come around, and if you have any sort of faith in it let them try it on some other herd of hogs first.

If notwithstanding all these precautions cholera does come and your pigs begin to show the unmistakable signs and die, sell all the hogs that are fit to sell except brood sows and kill all the little pigs, first being sure that it is not leech that is the matter with them instead of cholera, for leech will kill little pigs. Keep your brood sows, as few of them in a place as possible, disinfect your yards thoroughly, see that the hogs have pure water and take your chances.

Whenever hogs show signs of cholera, take all the corn feed away from them, turn them out on to the pastures and let them take their chances. They will doctor themselves in this way better than you can doctor them. The probability is that you will save from one-half to 75 per cent. They will be ever afterward immune, and you can then try for yourselves if you keep a record of their breeding the merits of the system of inoculating in utero.—Wallace's Farmer.

The Short Pig Crop.
It is more than probable that the shortage in the pig crop, of which we are hearing so much, is somewhat exaggerated, says National Stockman. That there is not the usual crop of pigs is generally conceded, but the reduction in numbers is far below the extreme estimates. Just now everybody wants pigs, and nobody has them to sell, which gives the impression of a great scarcity. And, further, it must be remembered that the light hogs are now being held back to finish on new corn, and when they come in they will average far above last year's weights. A good gain in average weight will go far toward overcoming any shortage in the coming season's hog supplies.

A GOOD CUSTARD.

How to Make and Bake It—Mysteries of Mixing Eggs and Milk.
A really well made custard pudding is one of the good things of cookery. It is not difficult to achieve, yet how often the attempt results in a pale, watery and unwholesome mess!
To begin with, it must be remembered that, however simple its ingredients, the texture of every custard pudding should be smooth, even and cut clean like a jelly. A custard pudding that is full of holes, is broken and curdled, has been cooked in too great heat or allowed to boil in the process. If it is found to be tough and spongy in consistency, it has been cooked too fast, though the oven may have been fairly right in temperature. The reason is that you have to obtain just (and only just) sufficient heat to thoroughly cook the egg, of which the custard is principally composed.

So, if the custard is baked, the oven must be a very slow one, and the dish containing the pudding should be stood in a baking tin three parts full of water, which water must never be allowed during the whole time of cooking to do more than simmer. If steamed, place the pudding in the steamer while the water below it is just boiled up; then draw the pan to the side and keep the water only simmering henceforward till the pudding is cooked.

Especially is this attention necessary in the case of the richer forms of custard pudding, as these, being usually made with the yolks of the eggs only, need the utmost attention both in the cooking and in the subsequent turning out. The fewer whites in proportion to the yolks used, the richer and more delicate will be the custard, but also the more troublesome to handle.

Here is the plain baked custard pudding: Boil three-quarters of a pint of milk with an ounce or two of sugar, a strip of thinly pared lemon rind, an inch or two of vanilla pod or the same of stick cinnamon, as you choose. Use milk is well flavored; have two whole eggs, ready beaten, in a basin and to these pour the boiled milk slowly, beating it well all the time of mixing.

When blended, pour it into a dish that has been either well buttered or thoroughly rinsed out with cold water; grate a little flavoring over the top to correspond with that originally used and bake in a slack oven, or, if you are doubtful as to the oven, stand the dish in a baking tin of water and bake.

If preferred, you may flavor the mixture with any essence to taste, but in this case the flavoring should not be added till after the egg and milk have been mixed and the whole is slightly cooled.
